

Environment

Adjust font size: [\[+\]](#) [\[-\]](#)

March 10, 2009

Built Green's 2009 winners

By JOURNAL STAFF

Built Green, the green program of the Master Builders Association of King and Snohomish Counties, has announced its award winners for 2009. They were given in multiple categories and honor outstanding projects, people, organizations and practices.

Built Green certifies and recognizes exemplary green projects. The awards were given at a reception following the organization's annual BuiltGreen Conference, held last week at the Washington State Convention & Trade Center.

Photo courtesy of The Cottage Co./Ross Chapin Architects [\[enlarge\]](#)
Redmond's Conover Commons Homes, developed by The Cottage Co. and Ross Chapin Architects, were completed in 2007 and are all sold. They are 4-Star Built Green.

This year, there were three types of awards. The Hammer Awards honored Built Green members in King and Snohomish counties for outstanding projects and participation in the program. The Pioneer Awards recognized people who have played an key role in the success of the program. The Washington Awards were new this year. They honor innovative practices and environmentally responsible residential construction.

For more information on the Built Green program, visit www.builtgreen.net.

Hammer Awards

- Single-family production builder of more than 100 homes: Cobb Construction
- Single-family production builder of less than 100 homes: gProjects
- Single-family custom or small speculative: Mastro Properties
- Multifamily high rise over five stories: The Schuster Group
- Multifamily high rise under five stories: Teutsch Partners
- Built Green community — large: Bonterra Homes
- Built Green community — small: Martha Rose Construction
- Remodeler: Sunshine Construction
- Built Green advocate in the public sector: Seattle Public Utilities

- Built Green advocate in the private sector: Puget Sound Energy
- Judges' Choice: Rolling Bay Land Co.

Pioneer Awards

- Jim Barger, president of Greenleaf Construction
- Ben Kaufman, co-owner of GreenWorks Realty
- Vicki Colgan, regional coordinator of the Washington State Department of Ecology
- Grey Lundberg, president of Grey Lundberg, Inc.

Washington Awards

- Small home design: Scott Homes, Built Green Olympia Master Builders
- Eastern Washington custom home: Copeland Architecture & Construction, Built Green Inland Northwest
- Western Washington Custom Home: Astal Construction, Built Green Whatcom County
- Community Development: The Cottage Co., Built Green of King and Snohomish Counties
- Multifamily project: gProjects, Built Green of King and Snohomish Counties
- Remodel under $100,000: Stewardship Remodeling, Built Green of King and Snohomish Counties
- Net-zero-energy home of the year: Clifton View Homes, Built Green of Skagit-Island Counties
- The Vicki Colgan Award for outstanding advocacy: Vicki Colgan, Washington State Department of Ecology

© Seattle Daily Journal and djc.com.